

Lisa Winter has been a teacher, educator, and administrator over her career in the United States and Australia. Her whole work life has been involved in challenging unlawful discrimination and harassment, and pushing for diversity, equity and inclusivity. For the last 15 years she has worked in community colleges. 10 years at LACCD. The last five at Santa Monica College as their Title IX Coordinator. Santa Monica College was one of the first California Community Colleges to identify a specific position for a Title IX Coordinator. Santa Monica College Community has a strong commitment to Title IX, and Lisa is active in a series of organizations responsible for Title IX and other good things.
